Becoming a Work Study Student

The School of Education and Social Policy is a wonderful place to fill a work-study position. If you think you would like working closely with faculty, staff, and fellow classmates, then the Student Affairs Office is the place to be. As a Student Assistant, the main duties would include, but not limited to, greeting office visitors, answering the phone, assisting with questions, photocopying when needed, filing, and other general clerical tasks. Our staff is friendly, the atmosphere welcoming, and your work-study experience here will surely be interesting and fun.

Participation in the Work-Study Program is determined by the student's financial need (total cost of attending Northwestern, minus family contribution) and is awarded as part of a financial aid package. Work-study is considered a "self-help" component of a student's financial aid. Wages earned through the Program supplement student savings and summer earnings, and must be used to defray the cost of attending Northwestern University.

To learn more about work-study, visit http://ug-finaid.northwestern.edu/work-study/jobs/index.html or call 847/491-7574.

To learn more about working in the Student Affairs Office contact Yashiva Edwards at 847/491-4482.